This week there is a big heatwave in many parts of Europe with temperatures in some places close to 40C especially in France and Spain, Water becomes even more precious during a heatwave, it is crucial to maintain proper hydration to prevent dehydration. Dr Angela Rai, GP at The London General Practice says, "It is well known that most individuals do not consume enough water," It is recommended to drink around eight glasses of water per day, which equals around 1.5-2 litres per day. A few simple facts about water and how precious it is. Nearly 97% of the world's water is salty or otherwise undrinkable. 3% is just freshwater. Of this 2% is locked in ice caps and glaciers. That leaves just 1% for all of humanity's needs – all its agricultural, residential, manufacturing, community, and personal needs. If all the water in the world could fit into a jug, the fresh water available for us to use would equal only about one tablespoon. Nearly 1 billion people worldwide have limited access to water. Many people, especially women in developing countries, walk 6km each day to collect water. A drip from a tap can waste over 100 litres of water in a day. Our bones are 31% water and 70% of the human body is water. At birth a baby's weight is made up of 80% water. Around 700 million people in 43 countries suffer from water scarcity. More than half of the water used at home is used in the bathroom. Water continually evaporates, condenses and precipitates, falling as rain. On a global basis evaporation approximately equals precipitation but it often doesn't rain where it is needed the most. Water regulates the Earth's temperature. It also regulates the temperature of the human body, carries nutrients and oxygen to cells, cushions joints, protects organs and tissues and removes wastes. 75% of the human brain is water and 75% of a living tree is water. A person can live about a month without food, but much less than a week without water. Water is part of a deeply interconnected system. Water is indeed a very precious gift, to be respected, minded and used with great care.

Summer blessing for families

May we make our homes place of relaxation, joy, love, peace and safety. May we be generous and considerate, not thinking only about ourselves, but Helping others enjoy the blessings of the summertime. Lord God, Creator of all things, guide our steps and strengthen our hearts during these months of summer vacation days. Grant us refreshment of mind and body.

May we constantly strive to make a meaningful difference in the lives of our loved ones and in the world around us as we enjoy the warm days of summertime.

We ask this through Christ our Lord. Amen

This is the final Newsletter until the middle of August

We wish you all an enjoyable and blessed summer time.
